Description

Floor lamp in milky-white Murano blown glass with inclusions, composed of two diablo-like volumes joined by a central chrome-plated metal ring. The surface of the glass features the granular texture characteristic of the pulegoso technique, giving the diffused light a soft, homogeneous appearance. The central chrome structure ensures the mechanical junction of the two parts and underlines the resolutely modernist character of the piece. Designed by Carlo Nason for Mazzega, Murano, 1970s.
