Description

Oil on canvas depicting a vast moorland landscape under a bright, cloudy sky, with cows grazing and trees silhouetted against a hill. A work characteristic of the manner of Louis-Augustin Auguin (1824-1903), leader of the Saintonge landscape school, a pupil of Corot and exhibitor at the Salon. The landscape painted here corresponds perfectly to his mature period, when he favored landscapes of dunes and moors in light tones, halfway between naturalism and impressionism. Painting presented in its period gilded leaf frame, with name cartouche, signed.
