Description

The work dates from the Grand Tour period of the mid-19th century. The sculpture stands out for the high quality of its craftsmanship in the rendering of details: the chiseled features of the face, the unkempt beard, the disheveled hair, and the dramatic expression perfectly capture the Hellenistic realism that has made this iconography famous. The dark patina is original and in good condition. The marble columnar base lends the piece a sense of height and great decorative significance. Condition as shown in photos.
