artist's mastery of portraiture and family settings is evident in this carefully depicted interior.Born in Morbier in 1817, Germain Paget received his first artistic training in Dole before continuing his studies in Paris with Adolphe Brune, Jean Gigoux and Thomas Couture. A regular exhibitor at the Paris Salon from 1841 onwards, he distinguished himself as much for his portraits as for his genre scenes.While the artist is particularly appreciated today for his compositions inspired by family and rural life, this interior scene is a rare record of his close circle. Beyond its pictorial qualities, the work is of genuine genealogical and historical interest, immortalizing several identified members of the Paget and Morel family.Germain Paget's works are today held in several public collections, notably in Dole and Morez.This canvas will appeal both to lovers of French painting of the XIXe century and to collectors sensitive to family portraits and intimate scenes.
