Description

Head sculpted in terracotta in a style inspired by ancient Greek statuary, evoking the classical and archaizing canons of antiquity. The face, deliberately idealized, presents a calm, timeless expression: almond-shaped gaze, balanced features, closed mouth, harmonious proportions. The upper part of the skull is treated in a smooth, continuous manner, suggesting a stylized headdress or bonnet, frequently encountered in neo-antique interpretations and academic studio work. The hair is soberly indicated at the sides and back, leaving all attention to the facial construction and volumes, in the spirit of antique-inspired sculptural studies. Unsigned work, typical of twentieth-century studio or academic work in the neo-classical tradition. Some minor flaws (visible
