Description

Jeune Femme Orientaliste - Watercolor signed and dated 1910. This elegant watercolor depicts a young woman in a pensive, melancholy attitude, captured with great sensitivity by an artist clearly influenced by the Orientalist taste of the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The delicately modeled face, the gaze lost in silent reverie and the warm harmonies of the clothing testify to a definite mastery of watercolor. The light, transparent brushstrokes lend the whole a particularly seductive atmosphere of softness and poetry. The work bears a signature in the lower right, which can be read "Mercier de Mont...", as well as the date 1910. Although the full reading of the patronymic remains to be confirmed, this signature contributes to the composition's charm and authenticity. Presented in its original gilded wood frame, it has retained all its character and elegance. The combination of this beautiful antique frame and this nostalgic female figure makes it a refined decorative piece, representative of the fascination with the Orient that inspired so many artists at the turn of the 19th and 20th centuries. A work full of character and elegance. A work full of grace and emotion, ideal for a classic interior, a collection of antique portraits or an ensemble dedicated to Orientalism.
