Description

Elegant oval-shaped oil on canvas depicting an interpretation of "Venus in the Forge", a famous composition inspired by the work of François Boucher, master of French rococo of the XVIIIe century.The mythological scene features Venus surrounded by allegorical figures in a dynamic, sensual composition, true to Boucher's refined, decorative spirit. The warm colors, delicate drapery and treatment of skin tones testify to quality workmanship and fine pictorial mastery.The work is signed and dated André Le Brerat, 1925. It is presented in its elegant gilded oval frame, which particularly enhances the composition.Very fine decoration in classical taste, ideal for a refined interior or a collection devoted to painting inspired by the XVIIIe century.Dimensions with frame:Height:
