Description

Pair of large Art Nouveau terracotta vases with bronze patina, featuring naturalistic decoration of climbing ivy and stylized branches. The slightly flared bodies feature a relief decoration of foliage running across the entire surface, typical of the vegetal and organic taste of the Art Nouveau period. Side grips simulating branches enhance the natural elegance of the ensemble. Beautiful shaded brown patina with green highlights, emphasizing the workmanship of the decoration and the modeling of the leaves. These decorative vases seduce with their slender lines and refined presence. French work from the late XIXe or early XXe century, ideal as decoration on a mantelpiece, sideboard or console trim. Era: circa 1900 Style: Art Nouveau Material: terracotta with bronze patina Decoration: ivy and stylized
