Description

Little Art Nouveau-style lady's desk or writing table in light wood, French work from the early XXe century. This charming piece of furniture features a sober, elegant line, resting on four curved legs linked by an arched brace. The openwork sides with slender vertical strips bring lightness and refinement to the ensemble. The front opens with two drawers in the waistband, fitted with their original knobs. The beautifully proportioned rectangular top offers an ideal work or accent space for a classic, country chic or vintage interior. Beautiful warm patina of the wood and careful craftsmanship characteristic of furniture from this period. Can be used as a small desk, console, side table or dressing table. Era: early XXe century Style: Art Nouveau / Transition 1900 Material: solid wood and veneer Condition:
