Description

Surprising dining room or middle table, bronze base à fluid, flowing structure reminiscent of art nouveau and topped with a glass top. Probably late 20th century Italy. A true functional sculpture, this bronze table is distinguished by its architectural base with fluid, dynamic lines. Whether used as a magisterial dining table or as a middle table in a grand entrance hall, its transparent glass top allows the remarkable metalwork to be admired from every angle. An exceptional piece, probably of Italian origin, ideal for collectors and interior designers in search of high-end furniture with a strong visual presence.
