Description

Directoire walnut entre-deux tableDirectoire period, late XVIIIe centuryElegant solid walnut entre-deux table resting on four square-section tapered legs, characteristic of the Directoire taste. Architecturally sober, it features a straight belt opening with a drawer at the front, retaining its antique draw knob.The rectangular top, with its harmonious proportions, reveals a beautiful walnut with warm veining, sublimated by a patina acquired over time. The whole testifies to the quest for balance and rigor characteristic of the Directoire aesthetic, already heralding the streamlined forms of the Consulate. The rectangular top, with its harmonious proportions, reveals beautiful walnut with warm veining, sublimated by a patina acquired over time.Designed to take its place between two
