Description

An elegant and rare early Victorian Art Deco umbrella stand from France, circa 1910. It combines the warmth of woodwork with the finesse of metal detailing. Its design reflects the transition between Belle Époque ornamentation and the emerging modernist clarity of Art Deco. The umbrella stand features a rectangular structure with two compartments of different heights, each supported by polished metal rods that ensure both visual rhythm and optimal functionality. The deep, glossy dark-red interior offers a refined contrast to the honey-colored exterior, underlining the sophisticated character of the piece. Carefully restored, this umbrella stand has retained all its former charm, while regaining its lustre and stability. It will make a striking feature in entrances or interiors that
