Description

Late 18th- or early 19th-century French school, probably from Provence, depicting a town burning at night. The flames are reflected in the lake at the foot of the ramparts. The crowd of inhabitants flees across the drawbridge, with figures in the foreground (woman and children, boatmen evacuating goods). The scene is spectacular, with the play of light, the transparency of the flames through the doors, the architecture standing out against the night in the glow of the blaze, the reflection of the fire in the lake. The painting is presented in a Louis XVI-style frame, gilded with gold leaf. A beautiful and highly decorative set. Ideal for a hallway, stairwell, dining room or living room. dining room or living room. In very good condition, painting cleaned, ready to hang. The
