Description

Handsome Set of Six (4+2) Edwardian Period Mahogany Chippendale Style Dining Chairs
A handsome set of six antique solid mahogany dining chairs in the classic Chippendale style, dating from around 1910 and comprising two armchairs and four single chairs. The quality is excellent, and the design particularly attractive. The backs are pierced with fine fretwork, and the legs are double stretched for extra stability. All chairs have drop-in upholstered seats, with the two carvers matching the four singles. The mahogany has a gorgeous colour and patina, and the original polish finish has been retained. Each chair features a shaped and carved top rail with moulded uprights and a pierced, carved central splat; the armchairs also have shaped and moulded arms. This leads down to drop-in upholstered seats in a neutral fabric, currently in good condition (and easily re-upholstered in a fabric of choice if desired). The chairs stand on square moulded front legs with shaped corner brackets at the top, joined by a double H-stretcher, with splayed back legs. The seat height is 50 cm. Generously proportioned, these chairs offer both comfort and aesthetic appeal, retaining their original colour and patina to the frames and ensuring they stand out in any setting.

In good condition and crafted in England circa 1910, this set of dining chairs is not only highly functional but also a superb representation of late Georgian design. Measurements of the chairs
