Description

An extraordinary opportunity for collectors of avant-garde art and forward-thinking investors. Enrich your collection with this splendid early 20th-century terracotta sculpture depicting "Eve, the First Woman." This work, characterized by a "primitive" and "nonconformist" form, immediately evokes the anatomical studies of the era, which focused on bodies with simple forms yet extraordinarily bold lines. The prestigious school of Master Arturo Martini (1889-1947) is clearly recognizable in this piece. Created during the height of Futurism, the pinnacle of 20th-century Italian art, the sculpture (height: 56 cm) perfectly embodies the expressive power and break with academic norms characteristic of the movement. A monumental work in its simplicity, capable of enhancing and
