Description

An important Piedmontese console table of exceptional craftsmanship, made in Turin in the early 18th century, during the period when the Louis XIV style was gaining popularity in the courts and noble residences of Piedmont. The piece stands out for its rich structure of finely carved, lacquered, and gilded wood, characterized by a refined ornamental repertoire composed of volutes, plant motifs, acanthus leaves, and exquisite openwork elements, reflecting the high level of craftsmanship achieved by Turin workshops of the time. The curved, sculpted legs are connected by an elaborate, shaped crossbar featuring a central element in the form of a flaming vase, lending the piece a striking visual balance and a sense of formal lightness. Of particular interest is the original top decorated in
