Description

Wall panel featuring earthenware tiles with hand-painted polychrome decoration, assembled to form a continuous composition. In the foreground is a chandelier mill, painted in a range of browns and ochres. The construction is rendered with precision: the wooden cage, the access staircase, the framework of the base resting on stone dice, and the wings with their latticework. In the background is a countryside landscape featuring a lone tree, a row of poplars and a village dominated by a church with a pointed steeple, all linked by a path through the meadows.
