Description

Fine original Empire-era bedside table early 19th century, in walnut, France. Structured as a centerpiece thanks to the finish on all four sides. The front is distinguished by the presence of four drawers: three visible central drawers and a fourth upper drawer hidden in the band under the top. The drawers are framed by two elegant turned columns, a distinctive architectural element of the neoclassical style. The structure extends downwards with a practical open compartment with a shelf underneath. The perfect finish on the back allows it to be freely positioned anywhere in the room, even in the center or next to a sofa. Restored and polished with shellac inside and out. BUY NOW
