Description

Monumental Ceramic Bowl with Black Glaze and Exposed Clay European Work, 20th Century Dimensions: Diameter: 59 cm (23.2 in)
A monumental pedestal bowl in hand-thrown ceramic, featuring a striking decoration created through the partial immersion of the piece in a deep, glossy black glaze while leaving a large portion of the clay body exposed. The meeting of the glazed and unglazed surfaces creates a free-flowing, organic line that naturally evokes the balance of yin and yang. The contrast between light and dark, gloss and matte, gives the piece a distinctly contemporary visual presence despite its timeless simplicity. With its exceptional dimensions, this bowl transcends its utilitarian function and becomes a sculptural object in its own right. Displayed on a table, console, or pedestal, it immediately commands attention through the strength of its form and the purity of its design. The subtle irregularities of the rim, the tactile quality of the exposed clay, and the richness of the black glaze reveal an artistic approach in which decoration emerges directly from the dialogue between earth and fire. Very good overall condition. Gallery's View This monumental bowl possesses a remarkable presence. Its decoration, reduced to the essential, achieves a compelling balance between graphic strength and material sensitivity. The depth of the black glaze responds beautifully to the mineral softness of the exposed clay, while its unusual scale lends it a truly sculptural character. A work that integrates naturally into both contemporary interiors and more traditional settings, where its restrained yet powerful aesthetic can be fully appreciated.
