Description

This sideboard with double sliding doors and integrated bar on a metal base fully embodies the functional aesthetic of the 1950s, where each piece of furniture is designed to combine daily service and visual signature. The sliding doors translate a search for modern use, while the integrated bar recalls the Parisian culture of entertaining.Post-war French furniture distinguishes itself by a desire for refinement and functionality, inherited both from international modernism and from a decorative tradition attached to the quality of execution. The metal base, slender and discreet, lightens the mass of the body and gives it that visual lightness so characteristic of the 1950s.With generous dimensions (Width: 180 cm | Depth: 46 cm | Height: 80 cm), it naturally structures a dining
