Description

Oil on panel "Imaginary Faces" by Jean DratzIf Dratz is best known for his realistic landscapes, commercial illustrations and satirical caricatures, this particular work highlights his rarer forays into the fantastic and surreal, capturing a haunting, overpopulated dreamscape of superimposed ghosts, monstrous faces and spectral figures reminiscent of James Ensor or Hieronymus BoschJean Pierre Gustave Dratz (1903-1967) was a versatile and prolific Belgian painter, illustrator, cartoonist and comic strip artist. Born in Mont-Saint-Guibert, he was the son and pupil of the painter Constant DratzSigned in the lower right-hand cornerWork: 17 cm wide and 22 cm highFrame: 25 cm wide, 5 cm deep and 30 cm highBelgian surrealism between the wars
