Description

A remarkable Belgian Art Deco whisky tray from the 1920s, combining geometric precision with rich contrasting materials. Its octagonal shape features a polished metal frame and carved wood handles, framing a dark veined wood veneer top inlaid with lighter geometric motifs. The interplay of tones, from warm walnut hues to pale inlays, creates a refined visual rhythm characteristic of early modernist design. This piece embodies the refinement of Belgian Art Deco craftsmanship, where functionality and aesthetics are harmoniously combined.
