Description

A refined French Art Deco pair of bedside cabinets, beautifully shaped in a sculptural tulip form and finished in richly figured bubinga veneer. The design is both architectural and fluid, with softly curved sides flowing down into substantial stepped bases of exceptional quality, giving the pair a confident yet elegant presence. Each cabinet features a single drawer fitted with a discreet brass handle, positioned above an open shelf and cupboard compartment below. This balanced layout offers practical storage while maintaining the clean, symmetrical lines characteristic of high-quality Art Deco furniture. The proportions are particularly pleasing, making them ideal for use as bedside tables, lamp tables, or occasional cabinets within a refined bedroom or interior setting. The bubinga veneer -- an African rosewood prized for its deep reddish tones and lively grain -- is especially attractive here, with a warm, lustrous finish that enhances the sculptural form. The craftsmanship is evident throughout, from the precision of the veneering to the weight and solidity of the bases, marking these out as pieces of genuine quality rather than decorative reproductions. This is a handsome and versatile pair, equally suited to a classic Art Deco scheme or as statement pieces within a more contemporary living space.
