Description

An impressive and striking ten-light Neoclassical Genoese chandelier, originating from an ancient and prestigious palace in the city of Genoa.Crafted from wrought iron, carved and gilded wood, and richly adorned with an extraordinary cascade of faceted crystals and original pendants, it represents a magnificent example of Ligurian decorative art from the late 18th to the 19th century.The structure features an elegant central shaft, carved and gilded, from which the ten light-bearing arms extend harmoniously. The ornamentation is embellished with decorative medallions, floral elements, and a rich array of crystals that lend the piece great luminosity and refinement.Its impressive size and high-quality craftsmanship make it a striking piece of furniture, ideal for reception halls,
