Description

Exceptional neo-Renaissance showcase cabinet attributed to the creative mind of Gabriel Viardot, made in France around 1890. This elegant carved wood showcase is immediately captivating for its rich decor and remarkable craftsmanship. It bears witness to the late 19th century's pronounced taste for Orientalism and Asian influences, themes dear to the renowned cabinetmaker Gabriel Viardot. The upper part features a glass door to showcase precious objets d'art, porcelain, collections or curiosities. The crown is dominated by an impressive dragon carved in wood. This finely crafted mythical figure symbolizes power, protection and mystery. Each detail reveals the exceptional craftsmanship of French artisans of the period. The lower section is closed by a solid-panel door that conceals several interior storage spaces. Shelves and shelves make it easy to organize objects, documents or accessories while maintaining perfect aesthetic harmony. The central panel is particularly eye-catching thanks to its remarkable mother-of-pearl inlay decoration. This refined technique is one of Gabriel Viardot's emblematic signatures. The delicate reflections of mother-of-pearl bring light, depth and sophistication to the ensemble. The subtly integrated geometric motifs dialogue with the curved lines of the furniture. The cabriole legs lend lightness and elegance to the overall silhouette. The relief carvings and decorative details bear witness to great artistic mastery. Asian inspiration can be found in many decorative elements, creating a harmonious balance between exoticism and French tradition. This unique combination is what makes late 19th-century creations so charming. The piece features a beautiful antique patina that underlines its authenticity. Preserved in its original condition, it has stood the test of time, preserving its historic character. The slight traces of use visible contribute to its charm and recall its past. They are all evidence of its history and antiquity. Thanks to its generous proportions, this display case is a natural addition to any elegant interior. It's perfect for a refined living room, a characterful study, a library or a collector's home. Its spectacular aesthetic also allows it to become a true centerpiece in a classic or eclectic decor. This piece of furniture today represents a remarkable testament to French furniture of the Belle Époque. It embodies the eclecticism, creativity and craftsmanship excellence for which Gabriel Viardot is renowned. Dimensions: height 165 cm, width 65 cm, depth 33 cm. A rare and decorative piece that will appeal to lovers of art furniture, antiques and Oriental-inspired creations. You can follow me on my Instagram by following this link:
