Description

A 19th-century terracotta sculpture depicting a seated cat. Montelupo Fiorentino (Tuscany). This artistic sculpture is characterized by the cat's extremely realistic pose, with its head tilted slightly upward. The style emphasizes the cat's anatomical forms and its steady, alert posture. Note the reddish, natural coloration typical of fired clay. This sculpture is entirely hand-modeled without the use of molds or predefined templates; it is one of a kind. Artifacts of this kind were used as decorative elements for both indoor and outdoor settings. Dimensions: height 41 cm, width 16 cm, depth 23 cm
