Description

A delicate and refined depiction of the Virgin in prayer, painted in oil on canvas in the second half of the 18th century. The work depicts the Madonna absorbed in a moment of intense devotion, with her head gently bowed and her hands clasped over her chest. Her face, characterized by remarkable softness of execution and an expression of serene spirituality, emerges from a warm, neutral background that accentuates its emotional power and pictorial quality. The composition draws on the tradition of 18th-century Italian devotional painting, intended both for the decoration of private spaces and for religious meditation. The delicate brushwork, the harmonious color palette, and the refined rendering of the skin tones lend the work a particular elegance and expressive intensity. The
