Description

1970s Adjustable Long Necklace in Solid SilverA magnificent long necklace in solid silver dating from the 1970s, crafted in an elegant "coffee bean" link pattern, particularly prized for its timeless design and understated elegance.This piece stands out for its original and ingenious design. It consists of two identical chains mounted in opposite directions, allowing for multiple ways to wear it. It can be worn as a long statement necklace or transformed by removing one of the two chains to create a shorter necklace, while using the second as a bracelet. A versatile creation that is particularly modern and sought-after.The necklace bears several hallmarks, including a clearly identifiable 925 silver hallmark. Two other hallmarks, likely those of the master silversmith and the workshop,
