Description

An elegant kneeler made of solid walnut, dating from the late 17th to the 18th century. The piece features a solid and harmonious structure, enhanced by finely scrolled side posts, typical of the late Baroque style.The front is characterized by a solid panel, while the top features a slightly projecting upper surface, ideal as a lectern or support surface.The base consists of a kneeling platform with molded frames and solid feet, which provide stability and balanced proportions. The walnut wood, warm and richly grained, retains a beautiful period patina that attests to the piece's authenticity.
