Description

Hare or rabbit terrine, also known as a "hare den" or "rabbit hutch," made of glazed earthenware, France, 19th century. The overall shape of the terrine mimics that of a hare lying in its den. The lid features a crouching hare in relief. The handle is located on the hare's back. The body of the terrine is decorated with 8 fleurs-de-lis. Very beautiful glaze, with no major or minor flaws. In excellent condition. Free shipping to mainland France. Please contact me by email. I am available to provide further information or additional photos.
