Description

Rare medieval Spanish processional cross - Burgos, Castile, late 14th - early 15th centuryExceptional medieval Spanish processional cross, attributed to the region of Burgos in Castile, dating from the late 14th or early 15th century.This piece is distinguished by the characteristic shape of Burgos crosses, whose three ends are adorned with stylized lily-shaped fleurons. Crafted from red copper, it retains its original Christ figure, also made from the same material.The piece features a beautiful, uniform, and particularly attractive antique patina with a glossy brown finish, reflecting centuries of history. Its excellent condition and authenticity make it a remarkable example of Spanish medieval religious art.A rare and decorative piece, intended for both collectors of medieval art
