Description

A lovely vintage "romantic" clock Restored, consisting of two parts. The upper section, made of gilded bronze with a patina, features its movement with a silver dial, set within a "rock-like" motif in patinated bronze. Anelegant, sad young woman holds a handkerchief and leans, pensively, against the rock. The lower section, in gilded brass, is shaped like a "marker." It is adorned with two gilded bronze friezes featuring "Gothic" motifs. A scalloped crossbar, also in bronze, features ogee motifs and, at its center, a cluster of oak leaves. The whole rests on four small curved feet. A 'window' allows one to observe the pendulum's oscillations. The wire-suspension movement bears the "Pons" hallmark for Honoré Pons, a watchmaker in Paris (1773-1851). It is in perfect working order and
