Description

An elegant Louis XV-style bench made in the 19th century, resting on five finely carved, curved legs. The ornate waistband features a design of stylized shells and moldings characteristic of the Rocaille style, while the scalloped backrest lends a harmonious and refined line to the piece. The re-lacquered and previously refinished wooden frame retains a beautiful patina of use, with visible signs of wear and past restorations, attesting to its authenticity and history. The upholstery is covered in a fabric with a floral pattern in soft tones and is in good overall condition.
