Description

A rare and significant set of four Spanish Gothic candlesticks, hand-forged from wrought iron in the late 15th century. These remarkable objects bear witness to the final years of the Middle Ages in Spain and reflect the austere elegance and exceptional craftsmanship of Gothic-era ironworkers.Entirely handmade, each candlestick displays the robustness and simplicity characteristic of late medieval design, with forged elements shaped by hand and assembled using traditional blacksmithing techniques. Their sculptural silhouettes and authentic patina bear witness to centuries of history and use.Spanish wrought ironwork from this period is highly prized for its quality and durability, and is often associated with ecclesiastical, monastic, and noble circles. This set embodies the architectural
