Description

An exceptional set of six miniatures from the School of the East India Company, dating from the Mughal and British Raj periods of the 19th century. A cohesive set of six miniature paintings in gouache and fine watercolor on thin plates of fine material, presented in their original oval gilt-bronze frames with folded mounting tabs. These works attest to the technical virtuosity of the painters of the Company School active in the 19th century. The set forms a comprehensive and refined panorama of the architectural masterpieces of the Mughal period in Agra and Delhi. The Taj Mahal: A classic frontal view animated by figures, featuring the central pool and the four minarets. The Interior of the Taj Mahal: A rare and remarkable perspective view of the openwork marble screen protecting the two
