Description

An elegant and imposing Louis XVI-era trumeau made of carved, painted, and re-finished wood, richly adorned with gold leaf decoration. It features a large mercury mirror framed by beaded and twisted moldings. The upper section is adorned with an oval painted panel signed by Freydier, depicting a delicate pastoral scene in the 18th-century style. The piece is embellished with garlands of flowers, knotted ribbons, laurel leaves, and a godron frieze, all characteristic of the Louis XVI decorative repertoire. With its generous dimensions, quality craftsmanship, and remarkable decorative appeal, this trumeau will naturally find its place above a fireplace, in a reception room, or a spacious entry hall. In generally good condition. Some wear and restoration consistent with its age. Delivery in
