Description

The famous P40 armchair by Italian designer Oswaldo Borsani. A design icon, this armchair, created in 1954, is designed to accommodate a wide range of seating positions. The seat and backrest recline in a fan-shaped pattern, and the backrest is height-adjustable. It features a square-section steel base supporting the seat, adjustable steel and rubber armrests, and a foam-padded seat covered in the original almond green fabric. The footrest is likely missing; the foam is a bit creaky but usable. The reclining mechanisms are present and functional.
