Description

This spectacular pair of monumental bronze caryatids, cast in Naples in the 1980s, draws inspiration from the famous female architectural figures of ancient Greece. Combining sculpture and architecture, these impressive works reinterpret the classical tradition of caryatids, those draped female figures that once served as supporting elements in Greek temples and monumental buildings.Each figure is depicted standing gracefully, with finely modeled anatomy, flowing drapery, and elegant proportions that evoke the timeless beauty of classical art. The sculptural treatment reflects the influence of ancient Greek and Roman masterpieces while benefiting from the exceptional quality of modern Italian bronze casting.The rich surface of the bronze accentuates
