Reclining Bronze Lion, 19th Century

250 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Bronze

Description

A charming 19th-century bronze sculpture depicting a reclining lion, a subject traditionally associated with strength, courage, royalty, and protection. Despite its modest size, the sculpture exudes a strong presence, capturing the animal's majestic character through its serene posture and the finesse of its details.The lion is depicted at rest, yet remains alert and powerful, reflecting the traditional symbolism of the king of beasts in European decorative arts. The sculptor has carefully rendered the mane, facial features, and musculature, creating a naturalistic and expressive composition.Cast in bronze and enhanced by a beautiful patina acquired over time, this piece will look perfect on a desk, a shelf, in a display case, or as part of a collection of animal bronze sculptures and antique
