Description

A spectacular monumental bronze fountain depicting Neptune (Poseidon), the mighty god of the sea in Greco-Roman mythology. Cast in Naples in the 1980s, this impressive work draws inspiration from the great tradition of sculpted Renaissance and Baroque fountains, which have adorned European palaces, gardens, and public squares for centuries. Neptune is depicted as the majestic ruler of the oceans, in an imposing pose that conveys strength, authority, and divine power. Traditionally associated with the forces of nature, navigation, and the riches of the seas, the god has become one of the most famous subjects of European monumental sculpture. The figure is executed with exceptional attention to anatomical detail, the fluidity of the drapery, and the expressiveness of the modeling. The quality of
