Description

TThis elegant French trumeau mirror, dating from circa 1900, beautifully embodies the timeless charm of the Louis XV Revival style popular during the Belle Époque period. Crafted in wood with a richly gilded finish, the frame is adorned with delicate Rococo-inspired scrollwork, floral motifs, and finely molded decorative details that give the piece an air of sophistication and refinement.The mirror is fitted with a beveled mirror plate, a highly desirable feature that enhances both its quality and visual appeal. The beveled edge captures and reflects light beautifully, creating depth and adding an extra layer of elegance to the design. Its well-balanced proportions make it an attractive decorative element for a living room, bedroom, hallway, or above a mantelpiece or console.Crowning the mirror is an ornamental cartouche decorated with a romantic 18th-century-inspired courtship scene. It should be noted that this image is a printed reproduction rather than an original hand-painted panel. This decorative feature remains entirely in keeping with the spirit of traditional French trumeau mirrors while offering a charming focal point.The warm gilt finish has developed a pleasing patina over time, complemented by minor wear and imperfections consistent with age and use. The construction, decorative treatment, and materials are characteristic of French production from the turn of the twentieth century.A decorative and versatile French mirror, offering warmth, elegance, and classic European character to both traditional and contemporary interiors.Origin: FranceDate: Circa 1900Style: Louis XV Revival / Belle ÉpoqueMaterials: Giltwood, wood, beveled mirror glass, printed reproduction panelCondition: Good antique condition with age-related wear, minor losses, surface marks, and rubbing to the gilded finish consistent with age and use.DimensionsHeight: 123 cm (48.43 in.)Width: 82 cm (32.28 in.)Depth: 6 cm (2.36 in.)Date: Circa 1900 (approximately 1890-1910)
