Description

An elegant pair of monumental marble sculptures depicting female caryatids, created during the second half of the 20th century. Inspired by the famous architectural figures of ancient Greece, these sculptures embody the harmony, grace, and timeless beauty of classical art. Masterfully carved from marble, each female figure is rendered with refined proportions, flowing drapery, and architectural poise. Traditionally used as sculptural supports in classical architecture, caryatids have long been admired as symbols of strength and elegance, merging sculpture and architecture into a single artistic form. With their impressive dimensions and sophisticated presence, these sculptures are ideal for large interiors, entryways, galleries, porches, terraces, or French gardens. Displayed individually or
