Description

This Louis XV-style tea table captivates with the grace of its curved legs, adorned with gilded bronze finials featuring garlands of fruit, ribbons, and leafy scrolls--motifs emblematic of 18th-century ornamental design. The eye is then drawn to the warm softness of the mahogany veneer, whose deep hue highlights the piece's oval silhouette. The top shelf, delicately framed by a molding, is finished in dark pink marble veined with white, whose luminous hues lend a precious and refined touch. Below, a second, larger top--also edged with a mold--offers an elegant additional surface and is distinguished by its two side handles, which underscore the convivial nature of this small living room piece. The butterfly-wing-patterned veneer shifts in tone depending on the light. The piece, with its subtle
