Description

Pair of Louis-Philippe-style cherry wood chairs, early 20th century, circa 1910. This elegant pair of solid cherry wood chairs, crafted in the Louis-Philippe style, dates from the early 20th century, circa 1910. With their simple and harmonious lines, they embody the timeless charm of traditional French furniture. The backrest, featuring a double scrolled crossbar, offers a balanced and refined silhouette, while the curved front legs add a touch of lightness and elegance. The original straw seats feature traditional weaving in good condition. They naturally show some signs of wear due to their age, without compromising either their aesthetic appeal or their comfort. Particularly stable and sturdy, these chairs can be used daily while retaining the authentic character of century-old furniture. Over time, the cherry wood has developed a beautiful, warm patina with amber hues that highlights the wood's natural grain. This warm tone fits just as well in a chic country interior as it does in a contemporary decor seeking authentic pieces. More than just a pair of chairs, these pieces tell the story of French artisanal craftsmanship and bring a discreet yet elegant presence to any interior.
