Description

Small 18th-century turned-wood convent reliquary containing saints' relics - 18th centuryA charming small devotional reliquary made in the 18th century, presented in a cylindrical case of turned beech wood. This delicate piece of convent craftsmanship contains seven authenticated relics, arranged at the center of an intricate design featuring scrolls and a symbolic heart motif. Authentic manuscripts identify relics of Saint Roch, Saint Philip, Saint Mark, Saint Matthew, and Saint Pius, as well as two other saints. The piece attests to the nuns' expertise in the art of reliquary making, combining religious devotion with decorative refinement. An object of intimate piety, this reliquary appeals today as much for the quality of its craftsmanship as for its historical and spiritual significance. In generally
