Description

An Empire-Restoration period console clock in Sienna yellow marble and chiseled bronze. Richly decorated and topped with an ornamental bowl, the side handles are particularly striking: shaped like swans with long necks, a motif highly prized during the Empire period. The front is adorned with laurel wreaths at the corners. The piece exudes an air of prestige, elegance, and solemnity inspired by Greek and Roman antiquity. The movement is in good condition; the pendulum is missing. A well-repaired crack, barely visible on the top. Good overall condition.
