Description

Bulgarian wool kilim, circa 1950. Very good condition.Beautiful Göçmen kilim featuring floral motifs across its entire surface. Against a burgundy red background, large rose and foliage motifs are surrounded by a border depicting a garland of flowers on a black background. Openwork weaving technique.The art of weaving carpets and kilims has a long history in Slavic countries and the Balkans, particularly due to the conquests of the Ottoman Empire beginning in the mid-14th century.Under Suleiman the Magnificent (1520-1566), the Ottoman Empire included Serbia, Bosnia, and Albania.Rose motif: The influence comes from the Damask rose, whose rose motif inspired Safavid carpets, which in turn likely influenced European tapestries. In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, the göl
