Description

Jacobus Frederik Sterre de Jong (1866-1920), A Young Woman Hanging Out Laundry, Oil on canvas, Canvas dimensions: 65 × 52 cm Dimensions with frame : 90 × 77 cm Original richly ornamented gilded wood frame. The canvas remains in its original condition and has not undergone any recent restoration. A light cleaning could further highlight the freshness of the palette and the subtleties of the light. The period gilded frame shows a few minor flaws and signs of wear from age, attesting to its authenticity. This charming genre scene by J.F. Sterre de Jong delicately illustrates a moment of daily life in the Dutch countryside of the early 20th century. Under soft light filtering through the tree foliage, a young woman hangs out her laundry while a child watches nearby. The peaceful atmosphere, the freshness of the white sheets, and the subtle play of light and shadow lend the scene a deeply poetic quality. Sterre de Jong is celebrated for her sensitive depictions of rural life and her light-filled compositions. Her work combines a keen observation of everyday life with an Impressionist touch, where color and light play an essential role in creating the atmosphere. In this work, the artist delicately captures the beauty of simple gestures and the harmony between man and his environment. The luminous palette, the lively brushwork, and the quality of the composition make this painting a remarkable example of early 20th-century Dutch genre painting. A work full of charm, gentleness, and nostalgia.
