Description

This pair of J Lang armchairs was designed by Philippe Starck in 1987 for Driade. These armchairs were part of the Lang collection, created to furnish the French Ministry of Culture, in reference to the minister at the time, Jack Lang. Their minimalist and comfortable design remains iconic, with a black leather-upholstered frame and a contoured cast-aluminum rear base. Signed on the base. Edition: Aleph Driade, circa 1987.
