Description

A set of four Rey chairs designed by Bruno Rey for Dietiker in Switzerland in the 1970s. The model features a circular seat, an openwork, enveloping backrest, and a bentwood frame assembled without visible screws. The wide vertical legs add rhythm to the silhouette and give the chair a stable, graphic, and compact presence. This version in red-stained wood accentuates the design's decorative impact and highlights the model's rounded lines. Manufactured by Dietiker, Switzerland, circa 1970.
